PARAGON SCENICS

(U.S.A.) 54mm unpainted plastic figures

Mexican Regulars set #3 (54mm) PSM016

Set includes 12 figures in 4 pose variations, plus 4 horses - with multiple plug-in parts. 24 heads of 3 different types are enclosed (shako, sombrero and bare) which can pop on and pop off and once in place can swivel. There are 4 different infantrymen in 4 poses (3 firing and 1 charging). There are 2 different cavalry poses with changeable right arms (with ring hands to hold 4 enclosed lances or 2 swords). Cast in sky blue color. You can use these as Napoleonic French infantry and other shako-hat troops of the early 19th century. ....$ 30.00

SAFARI (U.S.A.) 70mm painted plastic figures

Movie Zombies (70mm)

SAF686004 12 figures in 12 poses. You gotta love these guys. True, they're the walking undead, and they'd eat your liver if they got the chance. But what a charming group they are! There's the long-dead corpse, rising from its grave, and a second grave, yielding up just the hand of another occupant. Here's a friendly neighborhood corpse, crawling along in a once-white business suit and tie. You say you like walking ghouls? There's the beer-bellied zombie in bib overalls, and an elderly gent with a beard and fringe of hair, but no right arm. We have a Zorpe with a pompadour, 4 different corpse women shuffling in dresses and blue jeans, an ex-fellow in boots and white boxer shorts and even a kneeling guy reaching up for low-hanging brains. Talk about sense memories. These are a great tribute to George Romero and the other film directors who have given us The Walking Dead, the Night of the Living Dead series, 28 Days and 28 Weeks Later, Shaun of the Dead and all the other classic zombie films of the past five decades.....$26.99

Painted French Army of the Napoleonic Wars

Starlux, which went out of business around 2000, produced a huge range of painted and unpainted plastic figures. From the 1930s to the 1990s this great French company was one of the giants of the toy soldier industry. Sadly, their long-discontinued models are becoming increasingly difficult to find.

Their acclaimed range of Napoleonic figures is what put them on the map, and is generally regarded as one of the high points in painted plastic model making. Each figure was cast by Starlux in separate pieces. The next step was to assemble each model, which added true dimensionality to the piece. The final step was having their in-house artists painstakingly decorate each model in historically accurate uniforms. The Napoleonic range was titled "Super Starlux," as these models boasted the most sophisticated of all their paint jobs. All figures are in mint condition and were produced during the 1980s and early 1990s.

LOD - THE WALLS OF TROY

(U.S.A.) 54mm painted expanded foam accessories.

The great city of Troy, located along the major trade route which linked the Aegean to the Black Sea, was one of the World's leading commercial centers almost 35 centuries ago. A trade war erupted between Troy and a league of Greek city states sometime in the 12th, 13th or 14th century B.C.E., and was immortalized in the poet Homer's epic, "The Iliad." This legendary conflict has been a topic of fascination through oral and written history, but very few toys have been devoted to its subject matter.

The Walls of Troy - Complete Set

LDE02 LOD Enterprises' scale model of the legendary walls of Troy is a multi-piece model, made of painted expanded foam resin. It measures 62 inches long, 12 inches tall and 10 inches deep. It includes 2 straight wall sections (each measuring 12 inches long x 7 high x 6.63 deep), 2 stand-alone towers (each measuring 7 inches long x 10 high x 10 seep) and the massive gate complex (2 additional towers and the gate wall measuring 24 inches long x 12 high x 9 deep). (54mm figures are shown for scale and are not included). Because of the size of this item, a shipping surcharge will apply. We will contact you with the additional shipping charge.....$ 285.00
